

The University of Queensland (オーストラリア)

Temmy: Hi. My name is Temmy Adeduro from Nigeria. I am a third-year student here at the University of Queensland majoring in Electrical Engineering. Today, I'll get to show you around our campus here in St. Lucia, Brisbane, Australia. You'll get to see what it's like to study here and see that life here can be exciting and fun.

UQ, the University of Queensland, is located in Brisbane, the capital city of the Australian state of Queensland. Brisbane is the third-largest city in the country with the population of around 2.3 million people. The city enjoys a lot of sunny days and a temperate climate, so it's really comfortable living here.

On this vast campus, UQ offers a variety of subjects such as business, engineering, and health science.

Here you can see one of our most historical buildings. Construction of the Forgan Smith Building started in 1937. It's very classical, isn't it?

About 55,000 students are studying at UQ, of which approximately 20,000 are international students from 140 different countries and regions.

UQ has various types of classrooms, ranging from small rooms for seminar and tutorial groups up to large lecture halls with seating capacity for up to 500 students.

There are six libraries on the St Lucia campus. These libraries are equipped with computers for students, group-study and meeting rooms, 24-hour study spaces, and friendly staff who help us find what we need.

There are about 30 cafeterias, restaurants, and cafés on the St Lucia campus. And this is my favorite: Saint Lucy's. There's fast food, sandwiches, pizza, noodles, and drinks. They also have organic and vegetarian options.

Will: I love Saint Lucy's here at UQ. The cafeteria in the university is the best, especially the cos salad—the best one you can find.

Temmy: While you are at UQ, I definitely recommend visiting the Great Court. It has a massive lawn surrounded by historical buildings and sandstone carvings. It's very big! It's a fantastic place to take a break.

Linh: I'm reading and studying while waiting for my next class.

Tudor: I'm just eating lunch here outside. It's nice out in the sun.

Temmy: Most students live in either an apartment near the university or a dormitory on campus. Let's check out what it's like to live in a dorm. This is my friend Jesse's room. Hi, Jesse.

Jesse: Hi.

Temmy: Um, can we come in and have a look?

Jesse: Yeah, sure thing.

Temmy: The room is spacious and comfortable. We have a bed, a desk and bookshelves. Jesse, how is it like living here?

Jesse: Yeah, I love it. I can concentrate on my studies and my dormmates are great.

Temmy: In the dormitory, there is a TV room and a gym.

We are heading for the Herston campus. It's a 15-minute drive from St Lucia. It's the core campus for studying clinical health and research. This is the Public Health Building. Let's go inside.
Hi, Simon.

Dr. Reid: Hi, Temmy.

Temmy: Thank you.

Dr. Reid: Sit down.

Temmy: Why do you think we should study public health at UQ?

Dr. Reid: That's a great question, Temmy. University of Queensland is one of the top public health schools in Australia and in the world. Public health is a fantastic thing to learn because you learn how populations are healthy, not just how individuals can stay healthy.

Temmy: I guess that's it for now. I hope you enjoyed this introduction video. There is so much more of UQ I want to show you. But you can come and visit here to see how wonderful the school is and how you can benefit from studying here. Bye for now!
